The Gudrun Gytel Fund was established in 1998 in order to provide qualified American University students with the opportunity to further their knowledge of Danish culture, history, language, literature, politics, and society.

The scholarship supports semester or academic year-long study at recognized Danish institutions of higher education in the fields of humanities and social sciences, as well as in architecture, engineering, technology, and related fields.

While applications are considered throughout the year, applicants should take note of the following deadlines:

- October 1 (for Spring semester study)
- April 1 (for Fall semester and 10-month academic year study)
